

Games on the 17th

by Ucaoimhu

All answers in this puzzle will be entered normally. Nonetheless, in honor of the 17th of February, when the grid is filled each of its four 4x4 quarters will contain a 17th letter; these letters will all be displayed in the same, standardized way.

In addition, every clue contains a single incorrect letter, which must be corrected before solving. The incorrect letters, in clue order, will describe one type of grid square a token on another grid square may be moved to, and the correct letters will describe a different type. (One of these two descriptions makes reference to the four “17th letters” as important letters, and one doesn’t.) Move a token from START to END in the grid using moves of these two types; if you follow the shortest possible route, and if each time you move the token from the *m*th letter of an entry to the *n*th letter of that same entry you record the *m*th and *n*th characters from the corresponding clue (not counting spaces), these character pairs (in route order) will tell you what two games you have been playing.
